The main topics of this Special Issue are medical diseases in vulnerable populations, including migrants, ethnical and social minorities, and people experiencing homelessness. In this Special Issue, we aim to show reviews, original articles, clinical studies, case reports, and case series that can help clinicians to better understand the pathology, etiology, diagnosis, prevention, and management of medical conditions in vulnerable populations. Many of these persons are especially fragile, refugees, children, women, and disabled people, and very little is known about the healthcare needs of these groups.
