

Supplementary Materials

Biological manganese removal by novel halotolerant bacteria isolated from river water

Van Khanh Nguyen ^{1,2}, Myung-Gyu Ha ³, Ho Young Kang ⁴ and Dinh Duc Nguyen ^{5,*}

¹ Laboratory of Advanced Materials Chemistry, Advanced Institute of Materials Science, Ton Duc Thang University, Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam; nguyenvankhanh@tdtu.edu.vn

² Faculty of Applied Sciences, Ton Duc Thang University, Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam

³ Korea Basic Science Institute, Busan Center, Busan 46742, Korea; mkha@kbsi.re.kr

⁴ Department of Microbiology, Pusan National University, Busan 46241, Korea; hoykang@pusan.ac.kr

⁵ Institution of Research and Development, Duy Tan University, Da Nang 550000, Vietnam

* Correspondence: nguyendinhduc2@duytan.edu.vn (D.D.N.)

Pages: 3

Figures: 2

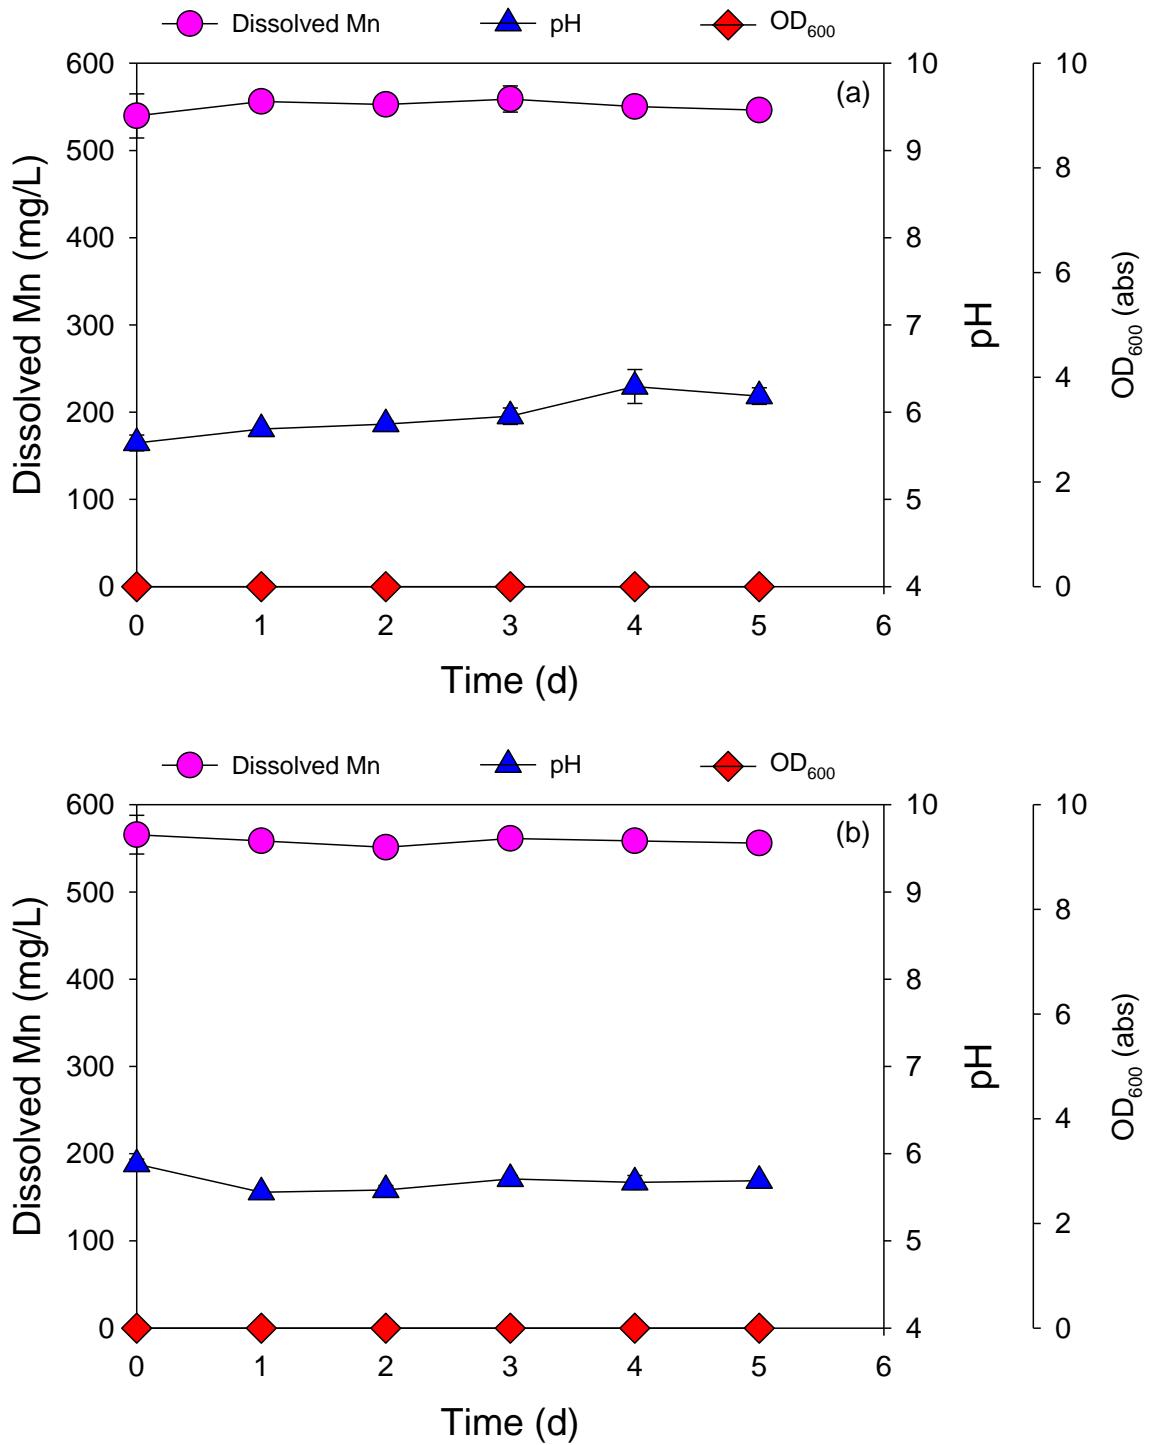

Fig. S1 Changes of dissolved Mn, pH, and OD of abiotic control basal salt medium (a) and nutrient broth medium (b).

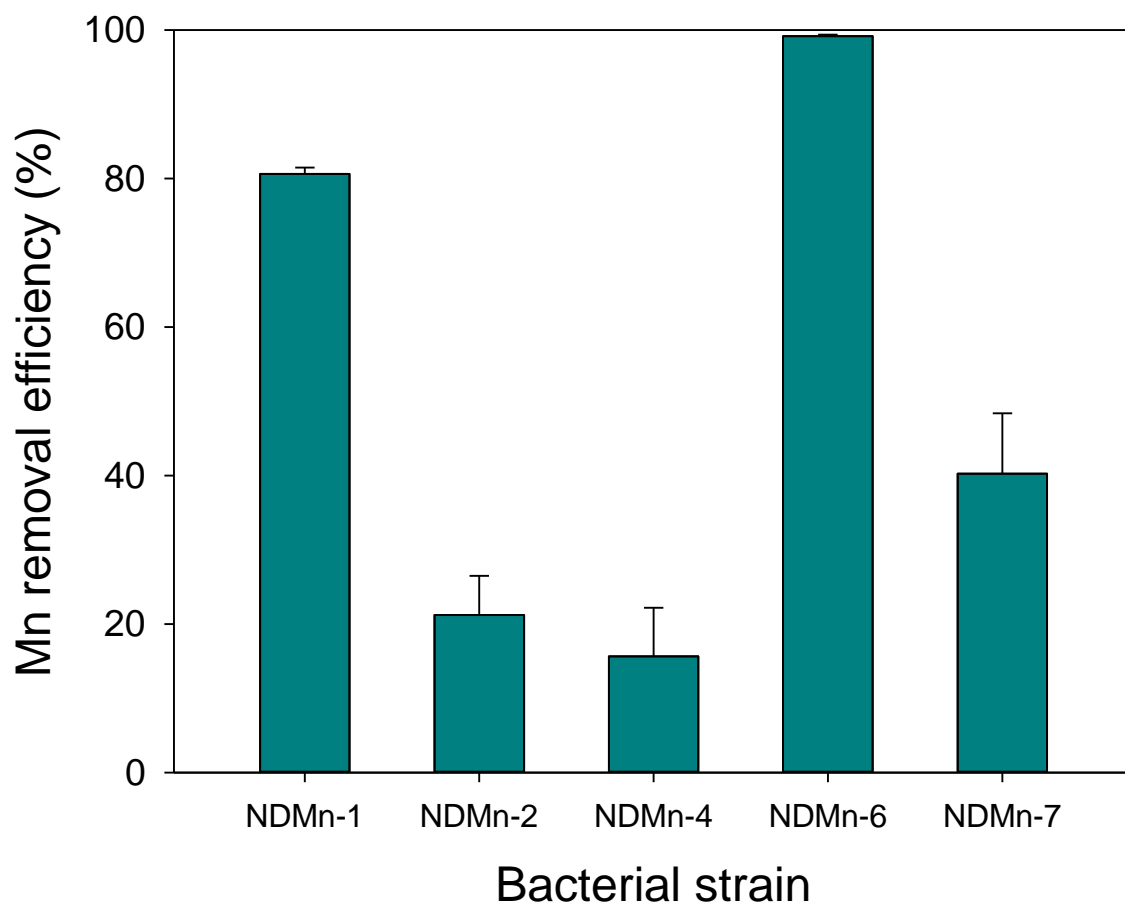

Fig. S2 Comparison of Mn removal efficiency by five isolated strains