Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Buildings (ISSN 2075-5309) is an international, peer-reviewed, open access (free for readers) journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, research notes, and short communications on architecture, building science, building engineering, building design and building construction. It presents research papers as well as practice-oriented papers on all aspects of buildings. As a journal that covers the full spectrum of building disciplines, it facilitates cross-disciplinary learning and promotes efforts to advance the design and construction of buildings.

Aims

Buildings is dedicated to publishing leading edge papers on all aspects of buildings – including design, materials, construction, operation, and maintenance. Papers on theoretical, industrial, economic, and other developments, which have a bearing on the design, construction and operation of buildings, are also published. Buildings is “practitioner-friendly” and encourages contributions from industry practitioners. This aims to facilitate a cross-fertilization of ideas between research and practice.

Scope

- Architecture and building design
- Architectural/building engineering
- Building construction and construction management
- Building materials
- Energy and buildings
- Building operations
