

Editorial: Impact Factor

Narciso Cerpa
Editor-in-Chief
September 2017

Current News

In the previous editorial we informed you of the inclusion of the Journal of Theoretical and Applied Electronic Commerce Research (JTAER) in the Social Science Citation Index from February 2016. This time we are pleased to inform you that the current impact factor (IF) of the journal is 1.441 and we congratulate all of you because this is a recognition to the quality of the research published at JTAER. This has been possible only due to the quality of your work as co-editor, editorial board member, reviewer, and/or author of JTAER. We thank all of you again for your valuable contribution to the sustainable development and growth of JTAER.

As we mentioned in our previous editorial, due to this continuous growth, we are currently seeking for new members for our Editorial Board (EB). The applicants must have extensive experience in scholarly journals, leadership in their discipline, and expertise in technical and/or business aspects of electronic commerce. We are giving preference to those applicants from countries that are not currently represented in our editorial board. However, we will evaluate each application based on its own merits. You may find a list of the editorial board members' responsibilities in the previous editorial (May 2017). Candidates should provide their current Curriculum Vitae and a statement of interest, including their potential contribution to the journal, and their availability to become members of the EB of JTAER. Current reviewers, and especially those who have received the reviewer of the year award are encouraged to apply for a membership. We are also seeking for high quality reviewers who should be able to review a maximum of four papers a year and will be included on our list of permanent reviewers. Reviewer certificate is provided on demand. Those reviewers who write high quality review reports will be considered for an EB membership in the future.