journals

180+ learned societies and organizations already trust our services, with levels of cooperation ranging from partnerships, by publishing journals on behalf of societies, to affiliations between the societies and one or several of our journals.

Society Affiliation Program:

Becoming an MDPI affiliate provides societies with an easy-to-follow publishing path for their members. It is one of the preferred options for organizations that do not have their own journals, or are not open access, in order to forge links with existing publications in their fields of research. Societies do not need to commit to any binding agreements, financial or otherwise. Affiliation benefits include:

- APC discounts for society members publishing in the journal/s.
- Possibility to edit Special Issues in the journal/s.
- Preferential rates on Sciforum.net conference organizing services, and free of charge platform use if self-managed.
- Sponsorship of annual society conference or other events, travel grants, awards, etc.
- Discounts on Proceedings publishing services.
- Discounts on language editing from MDPI Author services.
- Free of charge conference reports published in the journal/s.
- Preferential rates on MDPI Books services.
- Public mention of the collaboration and presentation of the society logo on the journal website.
