Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Occupational health is facing a series of complex and pressing challenges, ranging from traditional industrial hazards to emerging occupational stressors in the digital age.

Occupational Health is dedicated to becoming a high-quality, interdisciplinary international platform. We firmly believe that tackling contemporary occupational health challenges necessitates the integration of multidisciplinary expertise spanning occupational medicine, exposure science, health protection, epidemiology, ergonomics, psychology, data science, and policy studies, and it requires strong collaboration among academia, policymakers, and occupational health practitioners.

We cordially invite you to submit your outstanding research findings to Occupational Health. We are committed to a rigorous peer-review process and an efficient publication workflow to ensure that your research gains the widespread attention and trust of the academic community.

Aims

Occupational Health (ISSN 3042-8637) is an international, peer-reviewed, open access journal dedicated to advancing research and practice related to the health, safety, and well-being of workers across all occupational sectors and work environments.

The journal promotes an integrated view of occupational health, encompassing physical, mental, and social well-being. We publish original research, systematic reviews, and policy-relevant studies that aim to identify, understand, and prevent risks in the workplace while promoting sustainable and health-supportive work systems.
